

1. The first group of respondents (Group 1) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via telephone interviews.

2. The second group of respondents (Group 2) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via mail questionnaires.

3. The third group of respondents (Group 3) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via online surveys.

4. The fourth group of respondents (Group 4) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via focus group discussions.

5. The fifth group of respondents (Group 5) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via in-depth interviews.

6. The sixth group of respondents (Group 6) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of telephone interviews and mail questionnaires.

7. The seventh group of respondents (Group 7) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of online surveys and focus group discussions.

8. The eighth group of respondents (Group 8) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of in-depth interviews and focus group discussions.

9. The ninth group of respondents (Group 9) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of telephone interviews and in-depth interviews.

10. The tenth group of respondents (Group 10) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of mail questionnaires and in-depth interviews.

11. The eleventh group of respondents (Group 11) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of online surveys and in-depth interviews.

12. The twelfth group of respondents (Group 12) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of focus group discussions and in-depth interviews.

13. The thirteenth group of respondents (Group 13) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of telephone interviews and focus group discussions.

14. The fourteenth group of respondents (Group 14) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of mail questionnaires and focus group discussions.

15. The fifteenth group of respondents (Group 15) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of online surveys and focus group discussions.

16. The sixteenth group of respondents (Group 16) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of in-depth interviews and focus group discussions.

17. The seventeenth group of respondents (Group 17) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of telephone interviews and in-depth interviews.

18. The eighteenth group of respondents (Group 18) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of mail questionnaires and in-depth interviews.

19. The nineteenth group of respondents (Group 19) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of online surveys and in-depth interviews.

20. The twentieth group of respondents (Group 20) consisted of 100 individuals who were randomly selected from the general population of the United States. These individuals were surveyed via a combination of focus group discussions and in-depth interviews.

Patrick L. Edwards

2621

[illegible]

INTERFERENCE SEARCHED
Class	Subclass	Date	Examiner
PG-Pul	Text Search	09-30-2005	PK
See interference search	printout

[illegible]